

---

minor peeve

Posted by mrglsmrc - 2009/06/28 21:04

---

i ran protogoto today had some annoyances you might want to fix in your next distro.

i did not intend to run the package on my boot disk as i normally run it from a flash drive and have no problems. I ran from the internal drive because macupdate said you updated the program so i wanted to run the updater on my master image.

so here's what's interesting: first, macupdate was publishing old news as you know.

second, your updater is broken. Details....little snitch shows me that your application is not communicating. in your app i get a spinning beachball which eventually times out with a message like 'the server is too busy' or some such rot.

all that is livable. but the third issue: your software asked me for its serial number twice today.1) the first time when i ran it this morning. 2) and the second time after I restarted the machine. of course i fixed this autostartup business but something must be misbehaving if it keeps asking me for a S/N.

ok i am guessing this might be my fault: I can't blame you for my system behavior. Let's say there's some sort of permissions issue so the app couldn't write my S/N.

I will let you know if this becomes a re-occurring annoyance.

Thank you for your useful, valuable tool-protogo!

marc

---

Re:minor peeve

Posted by MicroMatTech3 - 2009/06/29 03:41

---

You are welcome.

If the problem reappears, please let us know what version you are using, what model of Macintosh you are using, and what system software version is in use.

---

Re:minor peeve

Posted by mrglsmrc - 2009/06/29 13:29

---

i use techTool Protogo.app 2.0.1 and osx 10.5.7 on a mid 2009 macmini with 4gig of ram.

Be assured I wouldn't ask for a fix in the next distro if I weren't already using the latest distro.

---

Re:minor peeve

Posted by MicroMatTech3 - 2009/06/29 13:45

---

Thanks for the details.

---